THE TROUBLES IN ARKANSAS.

ders—Insult and Intimidation. tile Rock Gazelle gives the following ac-lewisburg by the militia, just as obtained from the lips of an old and reliable citizen of that place:—

It appears that on Friday night (4th Instant) a party of men, said to have been in disguise, visited the house occupied by two negroes named Wash and Alvan Levis, who were living with two white women, and killed one of the men, the other (Alvan) making his escape. On the day following one Captain histhews, with a company of about thirty negro militia, all armed "Inside his appearance at Lewisburg, for the Julipose, as he said, of avenging the death of the murdered negro. "These men had been talking peace; we would now give them war," "They would shoot down every 0—4 4—4 Ku Kiux they could find." Proceeding a short flistance from the place, Robert Perry and a Mr. Jackson, both peaceful, quiet citizens, were met in the road hauling cotton, and both arresized. Perry was taken into a thicket by a detail of negroes, placed with his back against a tree, and Perry and a Mr. Jackson, both peaceful, quiet citigens, were ined in the road hauling cotton, and both arrested. Perry was taken into a thicket by a detail of negroes, placed with his back against a tree, and intorned that he must tell all he knew about the Ku Klux or die. His assurance that he knew nothing about any such order was of no avail, and a shot grating the side of the head and taking off one eut, convinced him that the negroes intended his aunder, so he broke from the thicket and succeeded making his escape. Jackson was taken out in a smilar manner, threatened with death if he did not disclose what they insisted he knew about the matter, and finally knocked down with a gun and shot through the head. He afterwards revived sufficiently to relate the details of his murder, giving the name of the negro boy who fired the gun. The wound proved faint. Mathews then proceeded with his gang to the house of one Thomas Hooper, an old man of sixty years, whom they arrested and placed in the hands of a detail of six negroes to be taken by them to Springdeld, as asserted. On the following morning Hooper was placed on a small mule, his feet tied together under the animal, his arms pinloned behind and a rope fastened about his neck and tied to the horn of the saddle of one of his guard.
In this manner he was seen to pass along the road, and on Sunday his lifeless body was found about midway between Portland and Springdeld, His death had been caused by placing the muzzle of a gun close to the back of the head, the entire charge passing through, inflicting a most horrible wound and

Meanwhile a meeting of the citizens ad been held and the Sheriff of the county sent for a rriving that officer assured the citizens that it their support he would cause the arrest of athews and his gang, and advised them to oranize for protection, which was done, and all now quiet. It seems that Mathews started at with the knowledge of the Sherif, but was did to make arrests if circumstances warranted by the usual process and turn over his prisoners to be justice of the peace having cognizance of the fence for investigation. The matter needs no coments. It is one of the terrible results of the prejuces and passions aroused for political purposes, he public will be glad to see a thorough, impartial vestigation and justice meted out to whoever may at fault.

Our informant says there is no question about the origin of the fire which occurred on Saturday morning, alteged to have been the work of the Ku Klu X. It originated in the cook room of the Glis House, and the property destroyed was owned by both parties, the so called Ku Klu X being by far the heaviest losers. The murder of the negro occurred on the night previous, but the facts were not known to the citizens until the following day.

permitted to see their friends, and all treated with indignity and insuit. Colonel jelks, former sherid of the county, was arrested by a company of men under command of a horse thief named Sharpe, who, with two other ruffinas, brandished cocked revolvers in the face of this unarmed and defenceless man and threatened his life in the presence of his wife and daughter. They, after robbing the family of most of their portable property, forced Colonel jelks to walk to Augusta through mud and water, in some places knee deep.

Adjutant General Danforth in his report states that Brigadier General Upham, hearing that he would be attacked, arrested some of the leading citizens and held them as hostages, and that others went out and parleyed with the insurgents and prevailed on them to disperse. One of those who went outside of Upham's fortifications told me that he found two men unarmed, and that at his request they dispersed. He reports a party of his men were fired upon by the rebels, and one man wounded. The facts are, that forty-six of the militia, riding along the road, saw eleven men in a graveyard burying a negro woman. The gallant forty-six, seeing they had no arms in sight, charged upon them, and, as these eleven ran off to the woods, two of them fired at the "gallant melish," and they fied. There has been no armed organization near upham, and he knows it; but I would not answer for it that there will not be one, and one that will sweep him and his ichlow thickyes from existence if he continues his course much longer.

Force at Augusta, Ark., to Protect Union Men-Arrival of the Ka Kinx Lenders.

From the Memphis Post, Dec. 15.)

The situation in Augusta, a small town in Jackson sounty, Ark., on White river, is anything but pleatant for the Ku Klux and rebei banditti which heretofore piliaged, nurdered and assassinated Union men, black and white, through that region at their pleasure. Peace reigned in Warsaw when these demons fan riot through that country and nogged unoffending and heipless colored men at midnight and hunted down Union men and shot them like wild beasts. But since General Upham, with a company of the pan riot through that country and flogged unoffending and heipless colored men at midnight and hunted down Union men and shot them like wild beasts. But since General Upham, with a company of the State milltin, encamped in Augusta, on Monday, the 7th inst., there has been no pence in Warsaw and these redemptionless rebels, whose hands are still dripping with the blood of their victims, have commenced to bray like refractory donkeys about their being "oppressed, robbed and maitreated by a ragamum melisn." Their organs of the press in Arkansas and in this city take up the wall, and publish outright libels upon the character of Governor Clayton and baretaced lies about the conduct of General Upham. All this pretended agony will not avad, however, in deterring Governor Clayton and his officers from executing the laws and preserving the peace in every portion of unreconstructed Arkansas. The real facts about the condition of affairs in Jackson county are briefly as follows:—During the Presidential canvass the rebel citizens of Augusta enforced the most wanton and relentiess terrorism throughout the whole community. They allowed no colored man to breathe the name of liberty or to enjoy scarcely a right which the laws of the State and nation guarantee to him. Upon the few white Union men, among whom D. P. Upham was most prominent, they exhausted every means to annoy and harass, and it was only by the most constant vigilance and cautiousness that Mr. Upham and his friends preserved their lives from rebel poitroons who lurked about in ambuscades to assashmate them. These flends succeeded, however, in getting a shot at Mr. Upham and Mr. McClare, but fortunately they were only wounded.

The vitalins continued to increase their outrages both before and since the election. Indeed, it was a well known and common threat by every rebel in Arkansas that if they did not succeed in killing or driving out every white Union man before the election they could do it afterward—when there could be no changes to make political capital o the Governor, and on the day above mentioned General Upham, with a commission as brigadier general, marched into Angusta with eighty-tour soldiers and encamped on the levee between the river and the riliage. He at once went to work and arrested the leaders of the Ku Klux Klan and lodged them in a two story brick block, where he will hold hem as prisoners till tried by a court martial.

Several of the rebel citizens, fearing an arrest, have since fied from the place and come to this city, hard all as has been declared in the county and turb the peace.

The Ku Klux have dashed around the town several times since the General has held the place, but without affeinpting an assault further than several random shots. As to the alleged robberies which the soldiers have committed, the whole story is a rebei fabrication, promuigated for the simple reason that the rebei banditti have nothing eise of calumny to charm.

THE HANGING IN INDIANA.

Further Particulars—Statement of Mrs. Anderson, the Wife of One of the Victims—A Terrible Narrative of Horror.

On Friday night Mrs. Charles Anderson, the wife of the prisoner of that name who was huig with the Renos at New Albany, arrived at Windsor, with her child, en route for her former home in New York State. Saturday our reporter had an interview with her, during which she related the whole story of the terrible fate of her huisband and the other prisoners who were lynched along with him. She says that she and Frank Heno's wife and sister were all occupying a house but about two blocks from the jail. They heard the reports of the pistols fired at three in the morning, but as the alarm bell at the jail did not sound they supposed that nothing was wrong then. Late in the morning the alarm bell at the jail did not sound they supposed that nothing was wrong then. Late in the morning the alarm bell did sound and almost instantly word was brought to them of what had occurred. Hastening to the jail they found it open and already crowed with people. They were informed that the prisoners were still hanging, upon which they refused to see them until they were cut down. When they next went to the jail they created to were lying in a row. Anderson looked perfectly natural, while Frank Reno's face was but little disfigured. Simeon and William iteno, however, presented horrible spectacles, as athe faces of both were terribly distorted. Mrs. Anderson's story of the entrance of the committee into the jail does not differ materially from that aiready given. The guard had stepped into the house to warm himself, and just as he was about to go out again a rush was made at the door and sone four or five pistols pointed at him. In answer to their question he said that he had not the slightest notion where the keys were, and that he was only an outside guard, having nothing to do with the keys of the jail. Shertif Fullenlove hearing the nobse came to the door, but comprehending the slightest notion where the keys were, and that he was done on the guard over the officers of the jail and the Sherif and his wire, and proceeded to induce his

THE CONSECTION OFTRAGE CASE.

Dr. Brenan Arraigned for the Fourth Time.

Dr. Brenan Arraigned for the Fourth Time.

[From the New Haven Palladium, Dec. 22.]

Dr. Brenan was arraigned for the fourth time before the City Court yesterday morning, tor a hearing upon the clarge of outrage upon Miss Mary Sheehan, deceased. The court room was again crowded to excess. The prosecution, for the third time, pleaded the absence of the principal witness, Mrs. Anna Upton, upon the same ground as it was urged that she had been detained beforevize, the sickness of her husband—but further said that, notwithstanding this circumstance, they would not ask for another continuance of the case. Further, it was said that the prosecution had evidence which would answer in place of that of the absent witness. Upon this anouncement the counsel (Messrs. Gardiner, prosecuting attorney, George H. Watrous, assisting the prosecution, and D. R. Wright, for the defence, adjourned to an adjoining room, where they had a consultation with Mr. McCarthy, uncle of the deceased woman, and the Chief of Police. I had a badly swelled face at the time, and told him how much it had troubled me. He said he could prescribe for that and could oure me right off. I had been taking laudanum all day, or from time to time. He gave me something in a tumbler, and after that I began to be dizzy and sleepy, and finally fell over; he nelped me up and told me to keep quiet and I would soon be better. He also commenced making passes over my head with his hands, smoothing my head. I lay in a stupor for some time; do not know how long, but I was awakened by feeling him trying to * * I treed to scream and he put his hand on my mouth, and I relapsed back into the stupor again. The next thing I knew he was trying to * * I tareatened to expose him and have him arrested. He said he was a doctor and knew he hadn't hurt me; that if I went to a court the lawyers wouldn't believe the story, and I would only bring disgrace on myself; I went home and cried all night. Never saw him but twice afterwards. Once I met him afterwards on Ash Wednesday, at noon, in the entry of the Tremont House; he wanted me to go into a room with him; I told him he was a scamp, and ran away. I went there this time to see Dr. Hebbard. I saw Brenna afterwards in the street, on election day; he was in a carriage at the time. I nave never seen or heard from him since. AUL C. SKIFF.

Arguments were then made by each of the counsel, Mr. Wright leading off and finally making a closing reply. For the defence it was urged that dying declarations are only admissible in cases of murder and homicide; that this was the only recognized view in British and American law. Many legal authorities to sustain this view were cited. The prosecution agreed that dying declarations were admissible in such cases, and urged that if a imissible in such cases they should be admitted in a case of the nature of the kind in question. Various other legal points were raised and combated. At eleven o'clock the case was submitted to the Recorder, who announced a continuation of the case and reservation of decision to this (Wednesday) morning.
